Diffuse Flower

“Diffuse Flower” is a tea pack that was inspired by Chinese lanterns, lavender flowers and the work of the artist Alexander Calder. I wanted the packaging to be aesthetically pleasing, to convey sophistication and elegance at the same time as being a practical, attractive object. I optimised the use of cardboard to avoid gluing and the overuse of material. The individual portions of tea are held in the shape of flowers which are attached to a long prism that can either be hung up or put on a surface, to suit the consumer.
